Abstract

The Fiqhi Rule and its Immplications in Man's Succession to Earth: Islamic City as a Model

Riham Ya'qoub Abu Ruqayyah

Mu'tah University, 2006

The purpose of this study was to review the behavior of the Fiqeh periodicals using different textual techniques and applications for determining the conceptual authority of the text writer. At the functional level, the study aimed to transfer the Fiqeh rule from a semantically single dimension of text reality to a multi dimension one and from an evidence-based dimension to an incidental-based dimension within the scope of time and space.

Methodology: the study adopted the cause-effect and natural approaches of Ibn Khaldoun. The study's hierarchy consisted (a) the spatial component (architecture), and (b) the chronological component (rule and market).

Connectionism: this study covered controversial texts of the Figeh periodicals, particularly, the ignorant segments of these texts to induce and explore the conceptual authority.

Achievements: the effort exerted in this study is to reach the organic literate who implies the decline system and explore its logic; in this way, the secret the Islamic city was unveiled.
